

Life application task

Key objective: Learn more about your credit scores and credit reports

1. Use FICO's online "estimator" at <https://www.myfico.com/fico-credit-score-estimator/estimator> to get a rough estimate of your FICO score. Answer the questions asked and then record the estimated score here:
 - a. Estimated score range 700 – 750
 - b. If for some reason you couldn't get an estimate based on your truthful answers (possible if you have no credit history at all), then make up a fictitious "what if" scenario and record the score here _____
 - c. Of the questions asked, were there one or two of your answers in particular that might have had a detrimental impact on your score? What could you do about them?
I think the age of my oldest account plays a large role, as I haven't had a card for long (under 2 years).
2. Get your Vantage 3.0 score free by first checking your monthly credit card statement (if you have one) and/or bank app. I know that Chase offers it free on their bank app. If neither of those sources work, go to the following website to see other ways of getting it free: <https://www.vantagescore.com/free> Record your score here: 672

If your score is low, what could you do differently in the future to help improve your score?

My score is not low for my age but is low for an adult. I will improve my score through staying up to date with my payments. My score will also improve on its own as my credit accounts grow in age.

If your score is high, what do you want to keep doing to make sure it stays high?

3. Check at least one of your credit reports at <https://www.annualcreditreport.com/index.action>. One strategy for consistently monitoring your credit reports is to rotate checking one of the three every 4 months. While perhaps a little more advantageous, it can also be a bit of a pain. If you prefer, pick an easy-to-remember date each year (e.g., Veteran's Day, Halloween, April 15) to check all three of them. Remember: By law you get free access to EACH one, once a year.

Couldn't get into the system _____ (Possible if you don't have much of a credit history)

Account activity looked right Yep (Used Experian)

Account activity looked wrong _____ (Follow up with the credit agency)

4. If your response to #3 is the first item and you do not have much of a credit history, what steps will you take to start creating a credit history?
